Family Charts

Most of the historical information dating back to the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries derived from Polish microfilm records of birth, marriage, and death. It is important to understand that the original records were hand written in notebooks located in individual towns. The quality and accuracy of the records differed from year to year and from town to town. Not all records survived. In addition, not all Jewish families registered birth, marriage and death events with civil authorities. Therefore, there are gaps and missing branches for our family. As families moved from one town to another, it sometimes became impossible to trace them.

The earliest available records indicated several people named Tuszyner and Tuszynski who were the progenitors of the family. The progenitors in this family book are Israel Lajzer Tuszyner (born 1793), Aron Salomon Tuszynski (born 1809), Majer Tuszynski (born before 1773), Jakob Tuszynski (born circa 1792), Arya Tuszynski (born circa 1780/90), Ezyk Faybis Tuszynski (born circa 1780), and Szymon Aron (born 1803). It is possible that several of the progenitors were brothers or father and son. They have not been linked in this family book because documentation has not yet been found to definitively connect these branches. However, elderly Tuszynski relatives knew of family on other branches and consistently described these relationships with the word "cousin". The Tuszynski family is most certainly a family of cousins!

We are the descendants of these family members. There are several charts included in this book to represent the branches. Some branches trace back to before 1800. Others begin at a later time because a document has not been located to connect the later branch to an earlier one. An asterisk following a name denotes a Holocaust victim. Population statistics for individual towns reflect the census of 1921. Whenever possible, the original spelling found on Polish documents has been included on the charts. Note that "sz" in Polish is pronounced as "sh" and the Polish letter "j" is pronounced as "y" as in the word "yes".

Every page of each chart has been labeled alphabetically and numerically. In order to view the entire chart for a particular branch, place the pages vertically. Chart A will be labeled A-1, A-2, A-3, A-4 etc. By viewing Chart A in this fashion, all of the descendants of the progenitor will be visible.

Please feel free to make duplicate copies of this book and share this genealogy with members of your family.

Chart A - Descendants of Israel Lajzer and Golda Tuszyner

Throughout their lives, Israel Lajzer and Golda Tuszyner remained in the town of Tuszyn, located 26 km SSE of Lodz. Israel Lajzer's given name was most likely Israel, and his father was probably named Lajzer. It was the custom during this time for a Jewish man to be known by his name with a patronymic addition.

The population of the town of Tuszyn was approximately 1300. Son Abram Mosiek and grandson Wolf Lejb Tuszyner moved to Piotrków, a large city 45 km SSE of Lodz with a population of more than 11,000. Son Szaja Wolf relocated to Brzeziny. The grandchildren of Szaja Wolf called themselves Tuszynski. Many of Israel Lajzer and Golda Tuszyner's grandchildren moved to Lodz. They endured the horrors of the Holocaust. Family members descended from this branch reside in Israel, Canada, and South Africa.

Chart B - Descendants of Aron Salomon and Haja Tuszynski

The birthplaces of Aron Salomon and Haja Tuszynski are unknown. Their children were born in Brzeziny, a town of approximately 5,000 people, located 19 km ENE of Lodz. Most of their children remained in Brzeziny. However, son Yosef married Hinda Malka in Tomaszow Mazowiecki, lived in Brzeziny, and then relocated to Tomaszow in 1880. Tomaszow Mazowiecki was located 45 km ESE of Lodz with a population of 10,000. The grandchildren of Aron Salomon and Haja moved to Plock, Lodz, Tomaszow, Pabianice, and other surrounding villages. Many of the descendants of Aron Salomon and Haja remained in Poland and were victims of the Holocaust. Those who survived reside in Australia, Brazil, Canada, England, France, Israel, and the United States.
